There have been two sessions each day of four hours each, making a total of 152 hours. It was expected that the testimony would be fully introduced by both sides before the close of yesterday's session, but surgiting revidence was brought forth by the rebuttal, chiefly at the close of the day's session, when Mr. Shepard, for the prosecution, offered a mass of statistics bearing upon the votes of a mass of statistics bearing u

Judge Troy responded, saying he would agree not to talk longer than did General Tracy. It was apparent, however, that Judge Bartlett was determined to consume as little time as possible, but the subject was left at this point for agreement between counsel.

ling the vote for one party or the other about election time. The Court thought that this did hot necessarily imply turpitude on the part of the defendant.

Herman B. Scharmann, of Sheepshead Bay, testified to McKane's general good character. He admitted that, as alleged, nobody could be in the liquor business in that locality who was in active opposition to McKane in politics. Judge Bartlett suggested that the witness seemed to make a distinction between personal dishonesty and the honesty of political leadership. The witness caused laughter by replying that a "political leader will do many things in that line which he would not do as a private citizen."

Then followed some important testimony by several witnesses, among them Oliver Denton, president of the Kings County Bank, where McKane keeps an account. He testified to the good reputation of the defendant. So also did John Cowenhoven, who is a bondsman for one of the indicted inspectors. Then John T. McKechnie, a reporter, was briefly examined as to statements he had heard with respect to an armed force of 150 men going to Coney Island on Election Day. Edward J. Sweeny, also a reporter, said that William E. C. Mayer told him that they were going to Gravesend with 150 men armed with 42-calibre revolvers.

anything bearing upon McKane's dishonesty in business or in the manipulation of elections until the present controversy came forward.

Augustus E. Cowen, a brother of Inspector Benjamin Cowen, said the visitors did not ask for the registry lists which were in his charge.

John A. Cook, of the Clarendon Hotel at Coney Island, had heard of the coming of 150 "armed" men under Colonel Bacon on Election Day. Conrad Steubenbord, father of an election inspector, declared that though his son had told him the list must be exposed nobody had called to inspect it. The witness is also a bondsman for some of the inspectors.

Dr. John O. F. Hill, the postmaster at Coney Island, saw the arrival of Colonel Bacon's party on election morning. He was confronted by Colonel Lamb on cross-examination with affidavits and statements made therein contradictory to his declarations on the witness stand.

BEGINNING THE REBUTTAL.

broker, and was an excellent witness for the prosecution.

The day's testimony concluded with the calling of Jesse Johnson, respecting certain allegations made by Mr. Roderick as to offers to furnish copies of registry lists at the time the mandamus was issued by Justice Cullen. Mr. Wernberg had also previously testified on this subject, as well as Mr. Grout, and the statements of these three wi'nesses were in direct contradiction to the allegations made by Mr. Roderick as to the time when the offer was made, and as to the fact of the number of districts the copies of the registry lists of which he declared he had offered to furnish. Mr. Roderick insisted that he had agreed to furnish all, while the three witnesses declared on oath that he had offered to furnish only a copy of the lists of the VIth District.

After an offer by Mr. Shepard of the documents previously mentioned, the Court adjourned until this morning at 9 o'clock.

Argument on the appeal from the order of Judge Barnard adjudging John Y. McKane, Justice Newton, James H. Cropsey, Harlan Crandall and N. J. Johnson guilty of contempt of court in disregarding the injunction secured by W. J. Gaynor on the eve of election was deferred yesterday before the General Term of the Supreme Court, as the defendants' counsel were engaged in the McKane trial.

AN ELEVATOR COMPANY INCORPORATED. The certificate of incorporation of the Chicago Railway Terminal Elevator Company was filed gral Tracy. It was apparent, however, that Judge Bartlett was determined to consume as little time as possible, but the subject was left this point for agreement between counsel. The testimony yesterday was not conspicuous for its importance, and was rather uninteresting in detail.

The first witness was Mary Vogt, who said whe knew Frank B. Cotterell, one of Mr. Gaynor's copyists; that he had boarded with her, and was not truthful.

Special duty work is considered a desirable assignment by the inspectors, but the Col-lector does not believe in having special inspectors, and so he made the change, much to the discomfiture of the special inspectors.

The most interesting testimony of the day was that given by Dr. Crawford D. Deceler. He was frequently blocked at the Bridge entrance.

The men carried the metal, which weighed eighty-five pounds, in a grip, and the trio announced that "they had gold buillon to sell." The mint officials made an assay of the metal and discovered that it was nothing more than a low grade of copper and zinc, and worth only 8 cents a pound. Thirteen years ago Mrs. Morrison advanced $6,000 to a nephew, and recently a stranger came to her with the two cupola-shaped bars, which, he said, were mined by her nephew in British Columbia and were worth $30,000, and which the nephew wanted to give her as security for an additional loan. Mrs. Morrison paid the intermediary $6,000 and then the trio named above started East to sell the "gold." The old lady is greatly grieved over the swindle.
